My Choices

YOUR GUIDE TO FURTHER EDUCATION

WHAT'S NEXT

QUALIFICATION	DESCRIPTION	LENGTH OF TIME	ASSESSMENT
APPRENTICESHIPS	A real job with training and a salary	1 Year minimum	Apprenticeship dependent (including demonstrations, presentations and/or exams)
A LEVELS	An academic qualification, similar in style to GCSEs that prepares you for further study	2 years	Mostly exams at the end of the course
T LEVELS	A technical study programme, equivalent to 3 A levels, with an industry placement that makes up 20% of the course. T levels are designed to give you the skills that employers need	2 years	Exams, projects and practical assignments
TECHNICAL / VOCATIONAL QUALIFICATIONS	Qualifications which teach you how to do tasks specifically related to the industry and role you want to be in	Course dependent	Course dependent (Coursework & exams)
APPLIED QUALIFICATIONS	Qualifications that prepare you for further study by combining academic learning with practical skills to give you a broad overview of working in a sector	Course dependent	Course dependent (coursework & exams)
TRAINEESHIPS	A work focused study programme that prepares you for an Apprenticeship or work	6 weeks - 6 months	A formal job or exit interview with written feedback. Coursework and exams are course dependent

Levels are designed to indicate the complexity of qualifications and Apprenticeships, allowing people to draw comparisons and understand where they sit in relation to the other options which are available. There are 8 levels plus entry level, with the higher levels offering the highest difficulty.

FINANCE

There are other means of financial support for young people staying in approved education or training.

Child Benefit

Your parents are usually only entitled to Child Benefit for you up to the Monday following 31 August after your 16th birthday, unless you stay on in full-time non-advanced education or approved training. They can continue to be entitled to Child Benefit for you at ages 16, 17, 18 or 19 if you are a 'qualifying young person'.

Full-time non-advanced education will usually be in a school or college but may also include education provided at home, if you were receiving this education before your 16th birthday and the home schooling had previously been approved.

Full-time, in this situation, means an average of more than 12 hours a week of supervised study during term time, not counting breaks for meals and homework.

This would also include a study programme that is for at least 540 hours in any 12-month period. It could also include a traineeship which could last between 6 weeks and 6 months.

Travel

If you are aged 16-18 you can get reduced travel to your place of study and/or your Apprenticeship or Traineeship:

networkwestmidlands.com/tickets-and-passes/child/16-18-photocard

Other Benefits

Depending on your circumstances you may be entitled to additional benefits and support such as help with equipment costs. Ask at your college, training provider or school appointment when you are enrolling.

Full details of financial support can be found on

SIXTH FORM

The Sixth Form represents the final years of secondary school, for pupils aged 16 to 18. The Sixth Form provides the academic preparation needed for university, transitioning pupils from GCSEs to an undergraduate degree.

Sixth Forms are smaller and tend to offer an individualised approach to your learning. In most cases the standard of teaching will be high in academic subjects especially. Also, a disabled student will already know how their school accommodates disabled pupils.

Entry requirements for school and college sixth forms vary – ranging from four to five GCSEs at level 4 or 5, with perhaps GCSE level 6s in the subjects you want to study, through to at least six GCSEs at level 7 or above for the most selective colleges.

Most Schools Sixth Forms and Sixth Form colleges will offer a wide range of A-levels and vocational courses. In addition to offering A-level courses, many sixth form colleges offer BTEC, T Levels, diplomas and other vocational courses too.

Most colleges and sixth forms within schools will start to open their application process in the autumn term of Year 11. This is the time when you should be visiting colleges and schools, going to open days, talking to former and current students and finding out more about the studying options available.

Check with your school (or the sixth form you want to attend if you're changing schools to study them) and ensure you know exactly what you need to get. You can take a maximum of five A Levels, although most universities are happy to offer you a place based on three subjects.

TOP TIPS

- Visit open days/ evenings
- Do research into what else the school offers
- Book another tour during the day
- Don't listen to your friends
- Listen to your gut feeling

APPRENTICESHIPS

Apprenticeships are work-based training programmes. Apprentices are employed by a business, whilst working towards relevant qualifications at the same time.

An Apprenticeship is a real job where you learn, gain experience and get paid.

You're an employee with a contract of employment and holiday leave. By the end of an Apprenticeship, you'll have the right skills and knowledge needed for your chosen career.

It can take between one and six years to complete an Apprenticeship depending on which one you choose, what level it is and your previous experience. It's funded from contributions made by the government and your employer.

To become an Apprentice, you must:

- be 16 or over
- not already be in full time education
- spend at least 50% of your working hours in England

As an Apprentice you'll:

- learn and gain hands-on experience in a real job
- get paid
- get training for a specific job role
- be on a career path with lots of future potential

You can find an Apprenticeship whether you're starting your career, want a change or are returning to work.

HEALTH & WELLBEING

It is vital to maintain our health and wellbeing throughout life but never more so during teenage years when significant changes take place, including exam stresses and transition into further and higher education or into the world of work.

Better health has been shown to boost energy levels, lift your mood and lead to better sleep, all of which helps us to cope with stressful circumstances. The habits set during teenage years can really benefit through life in protecting our mental and physical health to ensure we are happier, stronger and healthier.

Simple steps can be taken to improve physical health which doesn't cost a lot of money i.e. walking and running in your local area. Low cost basic gym equipment and ropes for skipping can be good fun and taking the stairs where possible is an easy way to help keep fit and healthy.

Pay attention to the present moment

Some people call this awareness "mindfulness" and it can help you enjoy life more and understand yourself better, positively changing the way you feel about life and how you approach challenges.

MENTAL WELLBEING

An integral part of our overall health, looking after our minds is a key component. Poor mental health can leave people feeling low in mood, unhappy and demotivated.

The natural ebb and flow of life has challenges for everyone, so to cope with these challenges a positive happy frame of mind makes it easier to deal with.

At some stage in everyone's life we will experience low moods and unhappiness which can last a very short time or even years, looking after your mental wellbeing at an early age can help prevent this.

There are ways in which you can help improve your mental health and general wellbeing:

- Good relationships are important – connect with other people, share your positive experiences to provide emotional support to others as well as yourself
- Be physically active – setting goals and challenges
- Learn new skills – helps you build a sense of purpose
- All the above cause chemical changes in your brain to aid positive mood, raise your self-esteem and confidence

WORKING FOR YOURSELF

Do you have what it takes to set up a business?

The Princes Trust offer a 4 day training course called Explore Enterprise that allows you to explore if self-employment is right for you.

Eligible clients can choose either face to face or can do the programme online with an E-mentor attached to them. In some cases, grants of up to £1500 are available.

Alternatively contact the Black Country Growth Hub on 0300 770 2245 to be connected with the Princes Trust or explore other options that may be available to you.

NATIONAL CAREERS SERVICE

The National Careers Service provides free, expert, impartial information, advice and guidance on careers, skills and the labour market in England.

I stayed on at 6th Form which enabled me to gain the additional qualifications I needed to apply to join the Police force

I left Thorns Academy to do a Level 3 Health & Social Care at Halesowen College, then went to University. I am now a Children's Nurse working as a Paediatric Sister at Russells Hall Hospital. I manage the nursing team on shift, as well as clinical support workers and students.

Working in Childrens A&E I see a lot of head injuries, broken bones, foreign bodies but also treat a lot of poorly children that require extra oxygen, medication and lifesaving treatment.

I absolutely love my job and I can't imagine doing anything different.
